On Loss And Celebration

Jeff Faux, President

The Christian experience is one that both mourns and celebrates our losses. Our annual holy week journey begins with a parade, and moves quickly to betrayal, denial and death. It is the death and resurrection of Christ that helps us to understand that death is not the end, but the gateway to eternity.

As Paul wrote to the Philippians: I want to know Christ—yes, to know the power of his resurrection and participation in his sufferings, becoming like him in his death, and so, somehow, attaining to the resurrection from the dead.

We know that our death attains for us the resurrection from the dead, the very thing we celebrate so richly each Easter Sunday. Yet the death of a friend or a loved one still pierces so deeply. Our Fellowship and its members deal with these kinds of losses each year.

This year we are particularly struck by the loss of Luke Nash. Luke had been a fixture in the Florida Fellowship since he was a middle schooler. One could not attend the summer workshop without a memorable encounter with Luke. His humor, demonstrated most famously in his annual State of the Workshop Address, or in his “Somewhere Over the Rainbow” parody, left many of us in tears of joy. For me, he was a friend and colleague. Luke served as my tenor section leader for a number of years in Bonita Springs and brought that same joy and love for God to my choir. When I introduced Luke to my choir for the first time, his bio began “I was born at a very early age . . .” With that, my choir knew they were befriending a very special person!

It is right that we take time when we are together each year to mourn and to celebrate. I am grateful to God that he has allowed so many wonderful, and inspiring people into my life through the Fellowship. Yet because we draw close in fellowship, we mourn when there is loss.

As a church worker, and now president of Florida FUMMWA, one of the great joys is to witness people showing care and comfort for those who grieve. When I see this in my choir, and in our Fellowship I know that the Spirit of God is blessing those interactions and those relationships. Take time when you can to reach out to someone experiencing a loss. If you don’t know what to say, pray for God to speak through you, or say nothing – just be present.

Don’t forget to celebrate! I thank God for Luke. He brought me great joy, laughter and friendship. I rejoice that he has been a part of my journey and I thank God for him. I look forward to our reunion in the tenor section of the heavenly choir. I can only imagine God is cracking up right now as he hears Luke deliver his State of Heaven Address!

Remembering Our Friend . . .

LUKE W. NASH

September 27, 1958—March 30, 2019

Luke Nash was a God-fearing man who would give you the shirt off of his back if you needed it. Luke introduced me to Florida Southern College and gave me my first tour which allowed me to meet my some great people, such as Mike Crawford and Bryant Manning, who have helped me become the person I am today. A few of the many things that made him happy were his family, friends, bowling, and his FUMMWA family. He spent much of his life blessing others and asked nothing in return. He was a listening ear in the time of need. He loved humor and off the cuff puns in conversation. I think we all can agree that Luke loved camp talent shows as well. If you take a moment and pause, I am sure you can still hear him saying, "Welcome to the Florida Chapter of the Fellowship of the United Methodist in Music and Worship Arts Annual State of the Workshop Address". I'd like to reference a quote from the movie "Wonder", which I believe embodies the life which was well lived by Luke. "You can't blend in when you were born to stand out". He was a good friend of many, and he will be dearly missed. ~Bryan Browning

I will always remember Luke for his funny comments in rehearsals at Workshop. It was hard to keep my composure and he always chose to sit right behind the altos, usually behind me. Then he would make it look like he hadn't done anything and ask why I was being so disruptive. That was Luke - always the cut-up! I have known Luke for more than 17 years and he always had a heart for the Music Workshop, especially for the youth. If he wasn't where he was supposed to be, he was with the youth. What a special man! No one will ever fill the hole he has left in many hearts. ~Cindy Huffman

When it came to caring about people he was a bleeding heart liberal with a MAGA hat. (The hat may have been more to get a conversation going though he rarely needed help with that). Luke was one of the first people who made himself known to me at Workshop way back when, making me feel welcome and a part of the group (as did Jean Bennett and Rosie Langdale.) His at first annoying nickname for me, "Tommy" I came to understand as his bonding way—my wife became "Cindy Lou" with him. In the near past when he was no longer employed at a church, any one of us might look out in our congregations and see Luke for no special reason—he just decided to drive three hours to church that day. We, of course, would sometimes actually invite him to sing solos which he loved to do. The people at Northwood appreciated his talents and of course our many choir members—both youth and adult—had a special bond with him through those Sunday visits and especially our one week every summer at Workshop. I, with so many others, will miss "Big Luke." ~Tom Huffman

In many ways, Luke WAS the Florida Fellowship, always there and always supporting. Whether he was a board member or dean, or just a Workshop participant and singer, he cared deeply for FUMMWA and for everyone that attended. He also worked very hard to ensure that the Workshop continued to grow and flourish. ~Rick Holdsworth

I first met Luke when he was a youth in our Workshop. When he sang at the talent show, it stunned everyone. He had a phenomenal voice that only matured through the years. Once he started attending as an adult, he was an instigator, rarely missing an opportunity to make a joke at any moment. I think I will miss that and his comic 'State of The Workshop' Address at the talent show the most. RIP faithful servant. ~BJ

My fondest memories of Luke are from the annual talent show. He would perform a silly song and then burst into an amazingly beautiful rendition of a classic song, like "Somewhere Over the Rainbow". ~Joan FitzGerald

I was deeply saddened to learn of Luke's death. Luke has been for more than a decade, a friend, fraternity brother, encourager, musical mentor, meal partner, and dad joke recipient to me. Just last week I spammed his phone with dad jokes I knew he'd like. He always simply responded, "Got any more?" Everyone knew Luke for his boldness, humor, talent, and opinions. That, and his Donald Trump and John Deere hats. Luke's voice in churches across Florida will be greatly missed; he even sang "The Lord's Prayer" when Allison and I got married! Luke is gone too soon from this earth but his soul is deeply remembered by his church families, choirs, and particularly the Florida Fellowship of UM in Music & Worship Arts. We love you, Luke! Workshop won't be the same this summer without you. Rest now, and sing praises with the angels tonight. ~Bryant Manning

... we will miss you.

Will You Teach a Class?

By Beth Green
Workshop Chair

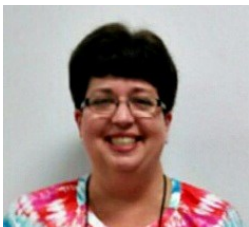

I have attended Florida FUMMWA Workshop at least 15 times over the years, since back when we held our conference at Eckerd College. Many of you have been involved much longer than that, and others are brand new. We all bring different experiences throughout our time at Workshop, but anyone who has ever attended remembers Luke Nash, so we all share to some extent in his recent passing. His "State of the Workshop" addresses were legendary. My favorite was when he would add a song. We are working on a plan to honor his time with us.

We are also hard at work planning your FUMMWA Workshop. Please continue to invite choir members, directors, and new people who have never heard of us! Bring youth from your church to the Music Camp portion of the Workshop. (The "Early Bird" Registration discount was only for adult rates.)

Also, pray for our Workshop. We need help to bring everything together, human and divine. Please reach out to me now if you have a class you'd like to offer to teach for one to four days in a 30-90 minute time block. Can't wait to see you June 9-14!

Building Relationships

By Karen Forrester
Membership Chair

Over the past year, I have been doing new things in our church music program. There were some days it stretched me thin, some days I wanted to quit, and then of course, the days that made it all worthwhile. Through it all, it became clear what being a member of the Florida Fellowship was all about...the relationships built through the years with the members of Florida Fellowship.

Many times over the year, I picked up the phone, emailed, and texted friends in the Fellowship to get advice or just to vent. The knowledge imparted at Workshop was also invaluable to me! There would have been no way to make it through this choir year without Fellowship friends and the things I learned at past Workshops. I encourage you all to become a member of The Fellowship or make sure to remember to renew your membership! I am thankful everyday for the work of the Florida Fellowship Chapter. Hope to see you in June!

Karen's Journal

"My Memories of Luke"

As I sit here writing my last journal entry, I had planned on writing about our church handbell group being on hiatus, but that doesn't seem important since I heard the news about my friend Luke who passed away on Saturday, March 30. When I got the news, I just was in shock. Not Luke!

My first encounter with Luke was in July 1999, when I went to Workshop my first time at Eckerd College. I was staying in the youth area with a friend since she was a chaperone and first timer also. I had walked by the common area and I heard this big voice that said "Hi, I am Luke! Who are you?" It seemed that week I was always running into him and always striking up a conversation with him. I can't remember if he was a youth dean at the time, but he had a passion for the youth and youth team since the first Workshop he attended was as a youth.

Over the next years at Workshop, I got to know Luke and learned he liked to crack jokes and make serious moments funny. He also was part of the welcome committee when we checked in! His state of the Workshop address at the talent show was like a box of chocolates. You didn't know if he was going to be long-winded, short and sweet, or be the one he used as an illustration in his talk. Yes, there were times I wanted to hit him over the head, but knew he had my back if I needed him.

The last several years, Luke seemed to mellow a bit and we had great talks. Yes, he still loved being the center of attention with others, especially the youth, but he had more of a serious tone. A few years ago, I got really upset about something at Workshop and he was one of the first ones there to listen.

Last year was probably one of the most memorable years with him at Workshop. He sat behind me at choir rehearsals and kept me laughing the whole time. We were probably a little rowdy and disrespectful at times, but hey, we had fun!

I also think he was more excited about me retiring than I was last year. I had a countdown timer on my phone, and he would email me or ask me on Facebook how many days. He kept up with it better than I did! I will miss Luke and his antics at Workshop. I don't think it will hit me he has passed away until the first day I register, and he isn't there, ready to see and welcome everyone! He was a true friend to all!

Love,
Karen

Inside the Museum are 12 oil paintings by prominent artists depicting the battle, along with displays of other materials, documents, and photographs relating to the fight. The aim of the Museum is to portray the spirit of sacrifice made by the soldiers who fought so hard and gave so much for their country.

If you have someone or something that you would like to see in this section, please send pictures along with any information you may have. If you would like for our communications chair to write the article for you, just include the bullet points and the article will be written based upon that information.
